

INSTRUMENT FOR FIXING THE POSITION OF A CUTTING PLANE

Abstract

The invention relates to a position locating instrument comprising a base connected to means capable of determining the position of the instrument, a plate moving along with the base for insertion into an opening of a bone cutting 5 guide, and resilient means for compensating for the play between the plate and the guide to prevent a movement of the instrument when it is inserted in the opening.